No suspect sought in deaths of father, sons burned in car

Bodies identified.
Man was reportedly preparing for divorce, called a 'gentle soul'

For days the family of a Mississauga father and his two young sons waited for word of their whereabouts. For days they followed the news of a grisly find in a burned-out car near Barrie.

On Wednesday, police confirmed the connection they feared: the three bodies found in the wreckage are those of Samuel Masih, 36, and sons Tyrese Sutherland, 10, and Santosh, 4, who had been reported missing early Friday.

The charred remains were discovered Friday morning on a dead-end country road a few hundred metres from a drive-in movie theatre northeast of Barrie.

The Ontario Provincial Police are not looking for suspects in the deaths.

"We're satisfied that the person responsible for the other two deaths perished in the vehicle as well," said Sgt. Peter Leon.

"With respect to cause of death, that's something the OPP normally doesn't speak to," Leon said.

Autopsies began Tuesday morning, but the release of the coroner's findings was delayed until late Wednesday afternoon due to difficulty identifying the badly burned remains.

On Tuesday afternoon, OPP investigators were knocking on doors interviewing neighbours about the family's history in the area and their recent behaviour, according to one resident.

Police appeal

The OPP are still asking for the public's assistance in their investigation.

- "We are appealing to the public, asking them if anybody observed any activity that may be out of nature, out of place, on either July 3 or 4," said Sgt. Peter Leon.

Several Mississauga neighbours told Torstar News Service the couple had been experiencing marital problems and were preparing for a divorce.

By Tuesday evening, family members and friends were arriving at a West Toronto home, bringing condolences and plates of food. Neither family nor friends at the home would speak with Torstar about Masih or the two boys.

Police released only the name of the deceased father Wednesday. The names of the children were confirmed through neighbours and family friends.

The family has lived on Riel Drive in Mississauga for about five years, neighbours said. They previously lived near the village of Trout Creek, Ont. While living there, Masih and his wife Brintha Shanmugalingam adopted Tyrese, their eldest son. A man who lived next to them, Gary Toogood, said they periodically took in children in need of care. He described Masih as soft-spoken, stable and close to his family.

"I know that he was involved in social work, at least that was my understanding," Toogood said. "From what I knew of the man, he was a kind, gentle soul."

A classmate of Tyrese at the nearby Bishop Scalabrini Catholic School said Tyrese had recently complained his parents were getting a divorce and he would have to choose which parent to live with.

A day in the life of the Ford brothers

CHRIS YOUNG/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rob Ford robocall

Mayor Rob Ford apologized for a robocall last fall targeting a councillor, an action the integrity commissioner called "unfair and unfounded."

- In the robocall last October, Ford said "Coun. Paul Ainslie was the only Scarborough councillor who did not listen to his constituents and voted against the Scarborough subway."
- Integrity commissioner Janet Leiper found Ainslie had met frequently with his constituents before supporting an LRT, and called Ford's comments a "material inaccuracy." She recommended council request Ford apologize.
- During debate on the recommendation, Coun. Doug Ford alleged a double standard, suggesting councillors regularly say inaccurate things about the mayor, singling out Coun. Shelley Carroll, who he said delivers "reckless inaccuracies." Ford retracted his comment after the speaker threatened to have him leave the chamber.
- Before the debate was settled, Rob Ford offered: "I want to apologize to Councillor Ainslie for informing his constituents through robocall that he voted against subways. I apologize. Thank you." Ainslie accepted.

Media inclusion

Council voted 38-3 to require politicians and city officials to allow the entire city hall press gallery to attend all media events at city facilities. The vote comes a week after Mayor Rob Ford excluded certain media outlets from his return-from-rehab speech in his office suite. Ford and councillors Mike Del Grande and John Parker voted against. The motion was tabled by Coun. Paula Fletcher. Coun. Doug Ford skipped the vote after he joined the other three in voting against holding the final vote on the matter.

Pride

"You guys have asked me this question for 14 years, OK? And you know the answer. I'm not homophobic."

Mayor Rob Ford when asked by media why he stayed seated while his council colleagues rose to deliver a standing ovation for Coun. Kristyn Wong-Tam's work on World Pride. The mayor has not attended Pride events in the past and admitted that he skips the Pride parade out of personal preference.

Emissions report

CLIMATE CHANGE: HE SAID, SHE SAID

THE WATCHDOG

Ontario's environment commissioner said Wednesday the Liberals have done virtually nothing to address climate change beyond boasting about their move to stop burning coal to generate electricity.

"Of course the coal plants was a good thing and caused the greatest single reduction in greenhouse gas emissions in North America," said Gord Miller. "After that, there's very little that we've achieved, and in fact we've gone backwards in areas like transportation."

In his annual report, Miller said Ontario will meet its 2014 targets for greenhouse-gas emissions but won't be able to do the same in 2020 because it has done so little to address the issue.

THE PREMIER

Minutes before Miller released his report, Premier Kathleen Wynne announced she would re-introduce legislation to outlaw the burning of coal to generate electricity, though there are exemptions for some small industries.

"Our past achievements alone are not sufficient, and we know that," Wynne told reporters.

Environment and Climate Change Minister Glen Murray said the government's plan to invest $29 billion in public transit and infrastructure projects, and to electrify GO trains and expand the service, will get more people out of cars, bringing down emissions that contribute to climate change.

Remembering a 'peacemaker'

Teacher's death. Police believe killing of Abshir Hassan was untargeted

Abshir Hassan
CONTRIBUTED

Eyes watering as he sat at the dining room table of his family's Maple home Wednesday, Ahmed Hassan said his son, slain teacher Abshir Hassan, had told him: "Nothing's going to happen to my life, I can bet you on that."

The 31-year-old teacher known for being a "peacemaker" and "good guy" was gunned down Tuesday morning outside his Flemington Road apartment.

The shooting also sent an unidentified 22-year-old man and an 18-year old woman to hospital.

Police said they have yet to find a motive for the incident — though they believe it to be untargeted — and are still searching for witnesses.

"He was at the wrong place, at the wrong time. That is all he was," said Ahmed.

He said his son always promised that he was safe living and working in the Lawrence Heights neighbourhood.

The family kept a room for Abshir in Maple and he had been offered another at a local relative's house, Ahmed said, but Abshir insisted on living close to the community he served.

In the days since Abshir's death on Tuesday, Ahmed said the family has witnessed an outpouring of support and condolences from friends, family and strangers all over the world.

Many told Ahmed that Abshir always called them on their birthdays, volunteered with local projects and taught them more than any other teacher had.

"Nobody took it well, from Europe to Africa to Asia to the U.S.," Ahmed said. "It still hasn't sunk in yet. I lost a huge part of me."

DC Entertainment is allowing a statue of murder victim Jeffrey Baldwin to be adorned with the Superman logo after all. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE FILE

Superman logo allowed on Jeffrey Baldwin memorial

DC Entertainment has reversed an unpopular decision that generated a "maelstrom" of backlash, agreeing Wednesday to allow the Superman logo to be used on a memorial statue of a Toronto boy who was starved to death.

Five-year-old Jeffrey Baldwin died in 2002 after being severely neglected by his grandparents, but a coroner's inquest last winter into his death caught the attention of Ottawa resident Todd Boyce.

Boyce was moved by Jeffrey's plight, and raised money to build a statue of the boy. He was especially affected by testimony from the boy's father that in happier times Jeffrey loved Superman and wanted to fly just like the superhero.

The statue's artist, Ruth Abernethy — known for a Glenn Gould bronze statue on a bench on Front Street in Toronto and a bronze of Oscar Peterson outside the National Arts Centre in Ottawa — designed it with Jeffrey standing on a bench, wearing a Superman costume like he did one Halloween.

DC Entertainment initially refused Boyce permission to use the logo on the memorial, but gave Boyce the OK on Wednesday, two days after The Canadian Press first reported the denial.

Charges. 'An atrocious fit of rage while driving': Cops

Halton Regional Police this week found themselves hunting down an entirely different kind of road-rager: A driver who allegedly hurled a steel block into the window of another vehicle, leaving a 5-year-old child and 3-month-old infant with minor injuries.

Calling the incident "an atrocious fit of rage while driving," police have charged 27-year-old Edwin Hepburn, of Acton, with assault with a weapon, mischief endangering life and dangerous driving.

A family headed down Highway 7 noticed a car directly behind them was following closely, seemingly looking for an opportunity to pass, police say.

When an opening presented itself, police say, the driver sped up and threw a steel block through his passenger window and into the partially open driver's window of the vehicle being overtaken, shattering the glass. Two children in the back seat were showered with glass fragments. They were treated by EMS as a precaution after glass shards hit their faces and eyes. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Bringing back legislation

Tougher penalties for distracted driving: Wynne

Premier Kathleen Wynne says she's concerned that Ontario teens are forming bad habits when it comes to texting while driving, after a new survey suggested an alarming number of students are typing while behind the wheel.

Her re-elected Liberal government will bring back legislation that would toughen penalties and add demerit points for distracted driving, Wynne said. The survey conducted for the Centre for Addiction and Mental Health found that more than one-third of licensed Ontario students in Grades 10 to 12 reported having texted while behind the wheel at least once in the past year.

Fine, 2 years probation. Better Belieb sentence for egging neighbours

Justin Bieber must pay $80,900 in damages and serve two years on probation after pleading no contest Wednesday to a misdemeanour vandalism charge for throwing eggs at a neighbour's home.

Bieber was also ordered to complete five days of community labour and a 12-week anger management program, and to stay away from the victim and his family for two years.

The 20-year-old Grammy-nominated singer was not present for the arraignment in California. Bieber's lawyer, Shawn Holley, entered the plea on his behalf.

A spokeswoman for Bieber said he's glad to have the matter resolved and behind him.

Prosecutors spent months deciding whether to file charges after the January incident. They considered felony charges because the damage was said to be more than $400, the threshold for a felony.

Deputy District Attorney Alan Yochelson said Wednesday he was satisfied with the misdemeanour charge and called egg throwing an "extremely immature and a silly act."

Justin Bieber THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bieber faces two other cases in Florida and Toronto. A Miami court has set a trial date this month for his driving under the influence case, which also includes charges that he resisted arrest without violence and was driving with an expired license.

The singer turned himself in to Toronto authorities Jan. 29 on a charge that he assaulted a limo driver in late December.

Ole! Bull gores author who co-wrote guide to surviving Pamplona

San Fermin fiesta. The 32-year-old author from Chicago was a longtime participant in the Pamplona street party

An American who co-authored the book Fiesta: How to Survive the Bulls of Pamplona, became a victim of a bull Wednesday when he was one of two men gored at the annual Spanish San Fermin festival.

Bill Hillmann, a 32-year-old from Chicago and a longtime participant in the nine-day Pamplona street party, was gored twice in the right thigh during one of the daily bull runs, organizers said on their website.

The injury was serious but not life-threatening, the Navarra regional government said in a statement.

A 35-year-old Spaniard man from Valencia was also in serious condition after being gored in the chest during the same run on the festival's third day, the statement said.

The six fighting bulls run along a 850-metre course from a holding pen to Pamplona's bull ring in a tense and dramatic few minutes immortalized in Ernest Hemingway's 1926 novel The Sun Also Rises.

San Fermin is one of Spain's most famous fiestas and attracts thousands of foreign tourists every year.

Three other Spaniards who fell during the run were being treated in Pamplona hospitals. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Anti-prostitution bill flawed, expert says

Human rights issues. Adviser on Swedish anti-prostitution law, which Tories hope to emulate, says new bill may be unconstitutional

One of the architects of Sweden's anti-prostitution strategy — a model the Conservatives are trying to emulate — says the proposed new law is likely unconstitutional.

A provision of the Tory bill that still criminalizes prostitutes in some circumstances is also a violation of Canada's Charter of Rights and Freedoms, as well as international human rights obligations, lawyer Gunilla Ekberg said Wednesday.

Critical

"It targets those who are victims of, first of all, a human rights violation, but also a crime."
Gunilla Ekberg

Ekberg is a Canadian citizen who was an adviser for the Swedish government in the 1990s when it crafted a law that makes it illegal to be a pimp or a john, but not a prostitute.

The Harper government has tabled a similar bill in response to last year's decision by the Supreme Court of Canada.

Ekberg and numerous other witnesses at this week's parliamentary hearings on the bill are urging the government to amend that provision.

Overdose. Alleged sex worker in court after Google exec dies on yacht

An alleged high-end prostitute accused of injecting heroin into a Google executive on his yacht in Santa Cruz and leaving him to die when he overdosed appeared in court on Wednesday on manslaughter and heroin charges.

Alix Tichelman, 26, in handcuffs and a red jumpsuit, did not enter a plea and was appointed a public defender. She is being held on $1.5-million bail.

Surveillance footage from the yacht shows Tichelman gathering her belongings, including the heroin and needles, then stepping over the 51-year-old victim's body to finish a glass of wine and lower a blind before leaving the boat, Santa Cruz police said.

Police said Tichelman did not provide first aid or call emergency authorities as the man, identified as Forrest Timothy Hayes, suffered medical complications and went unconscious during the November overdose aboard his 50-foot yacht, Escape. His body was discovered the next morning by the boat's captain, police said.

Police are also investigating Tichelman in connection with a similar incident in another state, Santa Cruz Deputy Police Chief Steve Clark said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gay marriage

Utah taking its appeal to U.S. Supreme Court

Utah state is going straight to the U.S. Supreme Court to appeal a federal appeals court's ruling that gay couples have a constitutional right to marry, the state attorney general's office announced Wednesday.

The state opted to challenge the decision with the nation's highest court rather than request a review from the entire 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver. That option is now off the table, no matter what the high court decides.

U.S., China. Fighting climate change ... together?

China and the United States took small steps toward their shared goal of fighting climate change on Wednesday, but the world's No. 1 and No. 2 carbon emitters remain significantly apart over a wider global plan to cut emissions.

China's chief climate official, Xie Zhenhua, said China should not be subject to the same rules for greenhouse gas emissions as the United States and other rich countries, signalling that Beijing will oppose any attempt to impose them at next year's world climate conference.

The U.S. special envoy, Todd Stern, said Washington favours every country deciding what it is capable of doing, instead of being categorized either as a developed country or a developing country in deciding how much a country should contribute to reduce climate change.

Asked how receptive the Chinese were to this idea, Stern said: "It's one of those conversations that just goes on and on, doesn't stop." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Not the time to test vaccines: Experts

The largest Ebola outbreak in history is leading to calls from some quarters to use experimental vaccines to try to stop the deadly virus. But a number of experts say deploying untested tools in the West African outbreak could be disastrous. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Deadly storm threatens major Japanese cities

A road is submerged by an overflowing river following a typhoon in Yomitan, Okinawa, Wednesday. A powerful storm slammed through the southwestern Japanese island of Okinawa, leaving at least 28 people injured and 63,000 homes without power before swerving toward the bigger island of Kyushu on Wednesday. Typhoon Neoguri downgraded. At least 32 injured and two dead; storm may hit Osaka, Kyoto and Tokyo

A strong storm swerved toward Japan's heavily populated main islands Wednesday after slamming through the southern islands of Okinawa, where it dumped heavy rain, knocked out power and injured at least 32 people. The storm also elevated rainfalls in other areas of the country, leaving two people dead.

Typhoon Neoguri was downgraded to a storm by late Wednesday after losing strength. But it toppled trees, flooded cars and bent railings in Okinawa, which experienced its heaviest rainfall in a half century, according to the Okinawan government.

One of the biggest storms to hit during Japan's summer, Neoguri was forecast to hit Kyushu island Thursday. Then it could possibly hit the major cities of Osaka, Kyoto and Tokyo while travelling across the main island of Honshu.

Kyushu's Fukuoka prefecture issued warnings for strong winds, high tides and heavy rains, and advised people to stay indoors as much as possible. In central Japan, rainfalls were elevated by the storm and caused floods and landslides, killing two people. In Fukushima, an 83-year-old man fell into a swollen river and died, while a landslide knocked out a house in Nagano, leaving a family of four underneath debris. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

On Okinawa, nearly 6,000 homes were still without power late Wednesday. At the storm's peak Tuesday, more than 105,000 homes were without electricity.

Iraq sectarian killings?

50 bodies dumped south of Baghdad

Iraqi officials discovered 50 bodies, many of them blindfolded and with their hands bound, in an agricultural area outside a city south of Baghdad on Wednesday, raising concerns over a possible sectarian killing amid the battle against a Sunni insurgency.

The bodies, all of them with gunshot wounds, were found in the predominantly Shiite village of Khamissiya outside the city of Hillah, located some 95 kilometres south of Baghdad.

The dead were all men between the ages of 25 and 40, and it appeared they had been killed a few days earlier and then dumped in the remote area. Most had bullet wounds in either the head or the chest.

Rebels kill 14 in village: Reports

Syrian rebels rampaged through a Sunni village in the province of Hama Wednesday, firing indiscriminately at civilians and killing 14 people, including seven women, state media and opposition activists said.

State news agency SANA said an "armed terrorist group" was behind the dawn attack on the village of Khatab, located 10 kilometres northwest of the provincial capital.

Britain-based Syrian Observatory for Human Rights — which documents the violence in Syria through a network of activists on the ground — said the rebels accused the village's Sunni Muslim inhabitants of "cooperating with the criminal regime"in Damascus.

Israel hits 200 Hamas targets

Gaza Strip. Israeli leaders warn ground invasion could be imminent

Israel stepped up its offensive on the Hamas-run Gaza Strip on Wednesday, pummeling scores of targets and killing at least 22 people.

The military said it struck about 200 Hamas targets on the second day of its offensive. Militants, however, continued to fire rocket salvos deep into Israeli territory, and Israel mobilized thousands of forces along the Gaza border ahead of a possible ground operation.

The fighting stepped up as Egypt, which often serves as a mediator between Israel and the Palestinians, said it was in contact with both sides to end the violence. It was the first indication since the offensive was launched on Tuesday that ceasefire efforts might be under way.

Israeli leaders signalled a weeks-long ground invasion could be quickly approaching

"Despite the fact it will be hard, complicated and costly, we will have to take over Gaza temporarily, for a few weeks, to cut off the strengthening of this terror army," Yuval Steinitz, Israel's intelligence minister, told Israel Radio. "If you ask my humble opinion, a significant operation like this is approaching."

Since the offensive began Tuesday, Israel has attacked at least 560 sites in Gaza, the military said. Militants have fired more than 160 rockets at Israel.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rocket strikes

The increasing range of the rockets from Gaza has disrupted life across a wide swath of southern and central Israel, where people have been forced to remain close to home and kindergartens and summer camps have been forced to close.

- Besides firing toward Israel's two largest population centres in Tel Aviv and Jerusalem, Hamas also fired one rocket that reached the northern Israeli city of Hadera for the first time, effectively putting the entire country under rocket range from the north and south. The city was struck in 2006 by missiles from Hezbollah guerrillas in Lebanon.

NBA's No. 1 draft pick doesn't pick No. 1 sports brand

Andrew Wiggins.
Canadian basketball phenom opts for underdog Adidas over powerhouse Nike

Andrew Wiggins will wear Adidas with the Cleveland Cavaliers.

The No. 1 overall pick in the draft, Wiggins wore the apparel company's gear while starring last season for Kansas. He chose to stick with Adidas rather than sign with a rival such as Nike in what's being called "an unprecedented partnership."

The deal announced Wednesday is believed to be worth more than $2 million per year.

Twitter

"Been waiting for this day. Happy to be joining the @adidashoops fam!"

Andrew Wiggins, the No. 1 overall pick in the 2014 NBA draft, in a tweet about his new shoe deal

"Joining the Adidas family is a blessing and an honour and I am extremely excited for what lies ahead," Wiggins, from Vaughan, Ont., said in a statement.

Adidas owns a fraction of the marketplace at about three per cent, according to retail tracking firm SportsOnceSource, while Nike dominates at close to 95 per cent with help from its Jordan brand. But the move to sign Wiggins signals a bold move by the German company to build its basketball business around young, up-and-coming stars.

Wall and Lillard, for example, were both first-time all-stars this past season. The move also represents a level of comfort for Wiggins, who tweeted out a photo of himself Wednesday wearing an Adidas shirt and a KU cap. The Jayhawks have worn gear from Adidas since 2005, which means Wiggins wore their shoes and apparel during his only season in college.

"Been waiting for this day," Wiggins said in his tweet. "Happy to be joining the @adidashoops fam!"

Apparently, Sega is still around, and so is Ripley

This video game image provided by Sega shows the character Ellen Ripley, voiced by Sigourney Weaver, in a scene from Alien: Isolation. Weaver, who portrayed unflappable officer Ellen Ripley in the Alien film franchise, is reprising her role for the upcoming video game, set after the events of the original 1979 film. "I had to start with this sort of sign-off, 'This is Lieutenant Ripley of the starship Nostromo.' You know, that paragraph. I felt like no time had passed ... If anything, it was more affecting to me to read it again 35 years later," Weaver told The Associated Press during a recent interview. SEGA/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

IT'S IN REVELATIONS, PEOPLE!

HE SAYS

John Mazerolle
metronews.ca

I don't want to alarm anybody, but the latest sign of the apocalypse is upon us: I made dinner, all by myself.

The ancient texts are clear about the unusual sights that will greet the final days of mankind: Rivers will run with blood, the sky will turn black, and John Mazerolle will make a nice beef stroganoff, served with red wine and a store-bought apple tart.

Behold! Tremble!

Preparing a meal might not seem like a cosmic event to you, but for a culi-nary like myself it was at the very least a moment of historical significance — up there with the fall of the Berlin Wall or that time Picard joined the Enterprise senior staff for their poker game.

For the first time in my life, I made an honest-to-goodness meal.

Like, with ingredients and measuring cups and everything. No misspelled food like X-Treem Kreem Cheez. No microwave. Not even a single package of powder to sully the fingertips.

What drove me to such a strange place? Well, I'd like to have children some day. And as much as I'd like to buy 10,000 boxes of Pizza Pops and say, "See you when you're 18!" I figure I should learn to make meals so that my kids can tell me how they'd rather starve than eat the disgusting garbage I make.

You know, like a normal family.

Cooking is such an unusual activity for me that when I called my dad to ask what makes a good corn-oil substitute I could hear his confused blinking over the phone. When the realization of what I was planning to do dawned on him, he panicked.

As far as he was concerned, I'd just said, "Hey Dad! Found a landmine at the beach and was planning to rip her open. Should I use a chisel or go right at 'er with the hammer?"

He wanted to know if my girlfriend would be around to help (i.e. put out fires), or if maybe I'd prefer to make Hamburger Helper, or have an apple.

If it had been a movie, he'd have appeared from the future covered in beef stock telling me not to make the dish, lest humanity be destroyed. It was all very encouraging.

But I forged on, and learned a few important culinary tips along the way. For instance:

* Onions come in at least two colours (yellow and white).
* There is prepared mustard, though I'm not sure what it knows that the other mustard doesn't.
* Hot oil applied liberally to your thumb will burn your thumb. Who knew?

And imagine my surprise when I learned that cooking in the kitchen was pretty fun. I was actually chuckling with glee over my creation, not unlike Dr. Frankenstein if he had made dinner.

So if there are any laggards like me in the reading audience, I say put your fears or embarrassment aside and make some beef stroganoff. Or even some other meals, presuming they exist.

If you don't do it for yourself, then do it because this could be your last meal. The End Times are upon us.

SHOPPING FOR AIR QUALITY

A cyclist passes buses and taxis in Oxford Street on Wednesday in London, England. Researchers have found that concentrations of nitrogen dioxide on Oxford Street are the worst on Earth. PETER MACDIARMID/GETTY IMAGES

Oxford Street air dirtiest on Earth, scientists say

London, England's Mayor Boris Johnson is under pressure to take drastic action on air pollution, after scientists discovered that Oxford Street is now the most polluted street in the entire world.

The mayor has previously dismissed air pollution levels in London as "perfectly fine."

However, monitoring stations on London's Oxford Street have discovered levels of nitrogen dioxide (NO_2) at up to 10 times the legal limit.

Scientists at King's College London said levels of the gas, caused by diesel vehicles, were now even higher than those found in Beijing. The toxic gas causes breathing difficulties and has been linked to increases in premature deaths and hospital admissions. POLITICS.CO.UK

Quoted

"To my knowledge this is the highest in the world in terms of both hourly and annual mean." David Carslaw, researcher

Why so high?

The problem with Oxford is the sheer number of diesel buses travelling (or, more likely, standing still with engines going) and that the street's a "canyon" — tall buildings set fairly near the road so fumes can't dissipate easily.

- Modern diesel engines emit more NO_2 than petrol, and London has been switching to diesel to lower CO_2 emissions.

The penultimate book-sorting machine

ANDREW FIFIELD
andrew.fifield@metronews.ca

It's becoming more and more difficult to resist a link that promises rare looks captured by a Phantom drone. Like this clip, shot inside the New York Public Library's massive Queens book-sorting machine that serves as a hub for requested transfers between the NYPL's many branches.

BUT! You can see we're in the nascent days of DIY drone documentary-making. The flight is a little wobbly, and the pilot seems more interested in dizzying POV adventure than capturing what's happening. But as mentioned, these videos and the glimpses they provide are getting tough to resist. (Nate Bolt/Vimeo)

Playing Massey Hall is ‘magical,’ for Basia Bulat

Basia Bulat headlines Massey Hall for the first time tonight as part of the Live at Massey Hall series. CONTRIBUTED

“I feel so shy speaking in Massey Hall,” said Tune-Yards’ Merrill Garbus. The New England musician was audibly awed to be playing Toronto’s hallowed venue during the recent North By Northeast festival. “It’s an honour to play at this venue.”

Pop is music concerned with the present. But standing on stage at Massey, a room that’s hosted concerts by the likes of Glenn Gould, Neil Young and even the Dalai Lama, history looms too large for pop artists to ignore.

“Massey is one of those venues — it’s magical,” says Basia Bulat, who headlines the storied venue tonight. “The minute you get inside, you feel it.”

Designed by a church architect and opened in 1894, well before the advent of amplified sound, the building has a distinctive sound, what former director of programming Jesse Kumagi calls a reverential tone. Then there’s the venue’s history of hosting a diverse range of legendary artists. “It’s essentially become the house of worship for music fans in Canada,” says Kumagi.

Bulat has appeared on Massey’s stage twice: She played at a Glenn Gould Prize gala honouring Leonard Cohen in 2012 and again earlier this year as part of Luminato’s Daniel Lanois retrospective.

Previously known for her autoharp-driven indie-folk sound, Bulat received a synthy makeover on her most recent album, Tall Tall Shadow. Tonight marks the first time the singer-songwriter will perform her own material at the hall.

To combat onstage jitters like the ones Garbus experienced, Bulat likes to walk out onto a venue’s stage and imagine all the people who performed there before her and all the people who will perform there after her. It’s a ritual she learned from an actor friend.

“You could freak out, sure,” she says. “But it also makes you feel like a part of something.”

BASIA BULAT WITH DESTROYER — TONIGHT. MASSEY HALL, 178 VICTORIA ST. TICKETS ARE JUST $18.94. SEE MASSEYHALL.COM FOR DETAILS.

Opening act

Opening for Bulat at Massey is Destroyer, the nom de plume of Vancouver singer-songwriter Dan Bejar.

- Tonight’s set will be a solo performance from Bejar.
- Bejar is probably best known for his work as one of the primary members of West Coast indie rock group The New Pornographers.
- Bejar is known for his lyrically complex compositions.
- Destroyer’s most recent album, 2011’s Kaputt, featured a jazz influenced sound; Joseph Shabason, multi-instrumentalist for Toronto synth rockers Diana, played saxophone.
- Brill Bruisers, the new album from the New Pornographers, is due at the end of August, with a new Destroyer album also in the works.

The devil in disguise

Snowpiercer. Tilda Swinton melts into a Thatcheresque leader in latest flick

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

For director Bong Joon-ho's dizzying science fiction spectacle Snowpiercer, chameleon-like British actress Tilda Swinton disappears behind some massive false teeth, garish glasses and a truly unfortunate side-part to play Mason, an embodiment of bureaucratic evil tasked with keeping the lower classes in line as what's left of humanity waits out a second ice age on a perpetually moving train. Luckily, she had some childhood experiences from which to draw.

I was joking to a friend that you can tell this is science fiction because it features Tilda Swinton with a Yorkshire accent.
That's fantastic. Yes, thank you very much. It's actually a private joke — which is now no longer private at all — for my brothers because they are the three people on the planet who are going to be most amused by Mason for a very particular reason, which is that we knew somebody who spoke exactly like that when we were little. The first year I was able to vote, Margaret Thatcher came into power, so my generation of people from the U.K. have had it up to here with what we call that nanny state. And she definitely went for that look, that condescending "you don't know what you want so I'd better whip you into shape" — which I, having been brought up largely by a Yorkshire woman, I know is a sort of cultural trope from that part of the world.

She does have a fair amount of Thatcher in her, doesn't she?
Ah, that's another interesting thing, Ned, and this is a little wordplay association thing. A mason is somebody who plays an important part in building a house, and another person who plays an important part in building a house is a Thatcher. (It's Thatcher) mixed in with all the rest of the gang — with Silvio Berlusconi, with Gaddafi, with Adolf Hitler, with people in North Korea and maybe even a little bit of bombast from the United States. That sort of feeling of people given to putting out a slightly dictatorial vibe while being kind of clowns as well — or rather us wanting to see them as clowns. However sinister or truly cruel a dictator is, there seems to be this tendency to look for what Director Bong would call "the cute." So however ridiculous the things are that are spouted by — for instance — the President of the United States at some point, maybe one wants to believe that there's a slight stand-up comedian in there somewhere. I don't know, it's a strange thing. That's a way that the psyche tries to protect us from feeling like we're being shafted.

Maybe it's a misplaced charisma.
I think you're absolutely right. It's certainly charisma, and I do believe that we have a tendency to vote for people who have that charisma for the reasons that they will produce the most amusing soap opera while they're in power — which is not necessarily the right way to go, but I do think it's a tendency.

Monkey see, monkey do. Planet of the Apes motion capture man talks about living the ape life

Terry Notary has played everything from goblins in The Hobbit to a banshee in Avatar. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Terry Notary is Hollywood's human shape-shifter. In a blink, he can become an elf, an ape or almost any other moving creature.

An expert in motion-capture performance, he specializes in bringing non-human characters to life on screen. He's played goblins in The Hobbit, a Who in How the Grinch Stole Christmas and a winged, dragon-like banshee in Avatar.

In Dawn of the Planet of the Apes, opening Friday, Notary plays more than 100 primates. He also taught the film's stars and stuntmen how to 'ape'.

"He's like an ape Zen master," said director Matt Reeves. "He lives in every frame that has an ape in it."

Notary demonstrated his technique during a recent visit to the Hollywood dance studio he uses to prepare for films. The compact, muscular father of four visibly transforms as he describes how apes are gut-driven and grounded. His stomach softens, his neck and shoulders slouch, his lower jaw protrudes. His eyelids drop slightly as his eyes take on a present yet far-away quality.

He grunts and howls before springing from his chair and breaking into a quadruped run. He bounces around the empty studio on all fours, with "arm extensions" he developed allowing him to mimic ape-like movements. He stops suddenly, as though he's spotted a threat, and becomes even more animated, emitting loud wails of distress.

Then he's back to being human again to talk about the process. Notary aspired to compete in the Olympics while training as a gymnast at UCLA but then found work with Cirque du Soleil after graduating with a theatre degree. He came to Hollywood as a stuntman and from there, developed into a sought-after movement coach for motion-capture shots, where actors are wired and their movements captured electronically for the building of computer-generated imagery.

Quoted

"He's like an ape Zen master. He lives in every frame that has an ape in it."

Dawn of the Planet of the Apes director Matt Reeves on Terry Notary

He created the lithe, long-limbed motions of the Na'vi in Avatar, taught the Silver Surfer how to ride in Fantastic 4: Rise of the Silver Surfer and went ape in three films, starting with Tim Burton's Planet of the Apes in 2001. (He performed stunts in all as well.) "I'm a good observer of movement and behaviour," the 45-year-old said. "That's what my talent is, I think."

He begins with an image of the character. For imaginary creatures, he might picture objects from nature. When conceptualizing the Na'vi, for example, he thought of reeds swaying underwater, gracefully at ease with the energy around them. For a goblin, he thought of a piece of crumpled tin foil.

"If you throw it, it has hard edges," he said. "It's not going to be predictable. It's going to be edgy and sharp and not have any root."

To develop ape expertise, Notary hung out with a couple of chimps and spent a lot of time watching primates at the zoo, videotaping and studying their behaviour. "I just took every little video I could and dissected it into moments," he said. "And I just always watched the videos as though I was watching a person in an ape suit, playing an ape. It made me realize ... it's all in the subtleties."

Notary had six weeks to put the actors and stuntmen starring in Dawn of the Planet of the Apes through his ape training. The first step? Shed preconceptions and human conditioning and just "be." "It's not about doing anything, it's about undoing," he said. "If you can start to get back to the base, neutral animal that we are, you're an ape." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

RULE 2

Make sure your cocktails match your snacks

THE ART OF THE MODERN COCKTAIL HOUR

THE SETTING Your place, 5:15 pm
THE COMPANY Your friends are over. They're peckish, but everybody wants to save room for the main event.
YOUR MOVE Nothing goes better with gin than killer tapas.

You've called it a day, but it's not quite time for dinner. Instead, it's cocktail hour—a time to whet your appetite for a good dinner, not spoil it. To master this in-between time, look to Southern Europe, where savoury and spicy snacks like tapas, fried seafood and mini-sandwich pinchos are practically mandatory companions to the flowing gin cocktails. Need a little inspiration? Turn to Patria restaurant's executive chef, Stuart Cameron, one of the city's top experts on Spanish-style food that pairs perfectly with a range of gin cocktails.

THE PAIRING Gambas with a French 75
The method Heat olive oil, add a clove of sliced garlic and chopped dry red hot chile pepper, then sizzle until golden in colour. Add a pound of shelled white shrimp and cook for four minutes, turning them over at the two-minute mark. Remove, add a pinch of salt, chopped parsley and a squeeze of lemon. Serve with fresh bread.

THE PAIRING Blistered Padron Peppers with Sea Salt and a Corpse Reviver #2
The method Heat olive oil until just smoking, add padron peppers and cook for two to three minutes, turning occasionally. Remove from heat and toss with sea salt.

THE PAIRING Pan con Tomate with Jamon Serrano and a Classic Gin Martini
The method Toast a sliced baguette under broiler on both sides until golden brown. Rub bread with garlic, drizzle with oil. Skin and grate tomato, spoon onto toast, and sprinkle with sea salt. Top with Serrano ham.

Comedy series

It's another small screen project for Soderbergh

Following his early retirement from filmmaking, Steven Soderbergh has become more present than ever on the small screen. After The Knick for Cinemax, the director is putting on his producer hat again for Amazon Studios' new comedy Red Oaks, the cast of which has just been revealed. Created by Gregory Jacobs, one of Soderbergh's frequent collaborators, the pilot is directed by David Gordon Green. Set in suburban New Jersey in 1985, the story follows David Myers, a college student who spends his summer working as an assistant tennis pro at Red Oaks Country Club. AFP

Living in the wild, in the buff

Naked and Afraid.
Reality-show participants share naked truth about survival — without the shirt on their backs

How do you prepare to be a survivalist-in-the-buff on Naked and Afraid? One way: You start at the bottom and work up.

"I walked around barefoot for months," said Dani Julien, who then spent 21 days undressed in the wilderness on the popular Discovery Channel reality show.

Julien and three fellow self-described survival experts appeared, fully clad, at a panel on Wednesday at the summer TV critics' tour.

Quickly enough, the question arose: Why?

"This is who we are," replied Jeff Zausch. "This is what we're made of. We were made to push the limits of what's humanly possible."

But why (apart from the fact that they're attractive, telegenic young people) the nudity?

Self-discovery, according to Eva Rupert. "It's only when you're pulled down to the rawest, most central core of your existence that you know who you really are," she said.

"It adds to the difficulty level of the accomplishment," added Justin Bullard.

But the nudity isn't supposed to be racy, the producers insisted. "We never meant for this to be an exploitative show," said executive producer David Garfinkle. "This is a family show."

The producers disclosed that the very title of the show is inspired by a phrase from, of all things, the Bible.

Of course, Discovery is a basic cable network, so camera angles are strategic and pixilation hides what clothes otherwise would.

Asked about his reaction to the selective pixilation imposed on his own naked form in the show, Bullard voiced one complaint.

"They could have made the blur-spot bigger," he joked.

Sci-fi

CBC-TV acquires Helfer/Van Holt drama Ascension

CBC-TV has announced plans to air Ascension, a six-episode Canadian-produced drama starring Brian Van Holt and Tricia Helfer.

The show was originally commissioned by American network Syfy.

The plot centres on a covert 1963 government space operation that sent hundreds of people on a century-long journey to populate a new world.

Nearly a half-century into the mission, a mysterious murder aboard the Ascension causes the ship's population to question the purpose of the voyage.

Van Holt (Cougar Town) and Helfer (Battlestar Galactica) are joined in the cast by Jacqueline Byers, Brandon P. Bell and Tiffany Lonsdale.

The show will premiere on CBC in November.

The comedy gene runs in the family

Welcome to Sweden. Amy Poehler's brother finds the funny side of his life in Scandinavia

Seated at a dinner table surrounded by his girlfriend's relatives on his first day in Sweden, Greg Poehler couldn't help thinking that his experience in culture shock might make a good television show or movie someday.

Flash-forward 14 years and that instinct proved true. The couple married, moved to Stockholm six years after that initial visit and have three children. And Amy Poehler's younger brother, 39, is now the writer, producer and star of NBC's summer comedy Welcome to Sweden, premiering Thursday (9 p.m. EDT).

The understated romantic comedy changes some details: Greg was a lawyer and his character, Bruce, manages money for stars like Amy Poehler and Will Ferrell; Bruce's in-laws are nuts and Greg's are normal. But many of the details, like the struggle with a language barrier, are straight from Poehler's life.

"When I was writing the show, I realized that my own life was a little bit too well-adjusted and happy for us to do a true story," he said. "No one wants to watch a show where a guy moves somewhere and everything goes great, the family is very supportive. It's good for your life. It's not good for a sitcom."

His goal was a show with equal appeal for both markets, one that would feel like an American show to Swedes and like a quirky Swedish show to Americans.

The first part worked. Poehler made the show primarily in Stockholm with Swedish actors for Swedish television, and the 10-episode season was considered a hit when it aired starting in March.

NBC had expressed interest in the idea prior to the series being made, but didn't agree to schedule it until after the full season successfully aired in Sweden. No matter what happens this summer on NBC, success in Sweden ensures a second season will be made.

The premiere features Poehler's sister as a self-absorbed star who fires Bruce as he tells her he's quitting his job to move to Sweden.

Greg Poehler had considered following Amy into show business until, as a 19-year-old, he visited for a weekend as she performed with a comedy troupe in Chicago. He was blown away by how good everyone was and figured he could never reach that level. Considering Amy's colleagues that weekend included Tina Fey, Stephen Colbert and Steve Carell, perhaps he was a little hard on himself.

He took another path, marrying a fellow New York lawyer with Swedish roots. An unscratched itch led him to try performing at a Stockholm comedy club two years ago. It went well, leading him to write the show.

Poehler acknowledges the benefits of having a successful sibling; he figures even Swedish TV producers gave him the benefit of the doubt knowing the bloodlines (Amy is an executive producer, and called on friends like Ferrell for cameos).

At the same time, it adds pressure. Welcome to Sweden relies more on character development than steady wisecracks, and more often than not his character is a straight man to others.

Asked when he finally felt at home in Sweden, Poehler said he hasn't yet. Even with support, there are challenges to fully assimilating into another culture, as immigrants of all generations know. Poehler said he didn't want to shy away from this in the series.

Clooney slams 'dangerous' claims that fiancée's mother opposes marriage

Britain's Daily Mail newspaper apologized to George Clooney on Wednesday for alleging his fiancée's mother opposed the marriage on religious grounds — a story Clooney called both wrong and irresponsible.

Clooney is engaged to Beirut-born London lawyer Amal Alamuddin, whose father Ramzi belongs to a prominent Druse family. The Druse are adherents of a monotheistic religion based mainly in Lebanon, Syria and Israel.

Citing unnamed family "friends," the newspaper's MailOnline website reported this week that her mother, Baria Alamuddin, wanted her 36-year-old daughter to marry a Druse man. It said Amal Alamuddin risked being "cast out of the community" if she wed Clooney, and claimed several women had been murdered for not abiding by strict Druse rules.

Clooney called the story "completely fabricated."

In a statement issued to USA Today, Clooney said that "to exploit religious differences where none exist is at the very least negligent and more appropriately dangerous."

Would you let Courtney teach your preschoolers?

NED EHRBAR
Metro in Hollywood

You know what your television needs more of? Courtney Love. The singer and loveable crazy-pants will be guest-starring on the next season of Sons of Anarchy, according to TVLine, playing a … preschool teacher.

I mean, sure. It's not like Love is a novice actor or anything, since she's done all right for herself in movies like The People vs. Larry Flynt, Man on the Moon and Sid and Nancy. Oh, and 200 Cigarettes, if anyone remembers that flick. But … a preschool teacher? All right, if you insist, Sons of Anarchy.

The seventh and final season of the show will also feature Marilyn Manson, so clearly they're working on a theme here.

A baby Gosling? Blogosphere abuzz with pregnancy rumours

Hollywood's hottest couple may be expecting. OK! magazine reports that Eva Mendes is seven months pregnant with Ryan Gosling's baby, according to a source close to Mendes.

"She's been ready for motherhood for a while now and to be sharing this experience with Ryan is a dream come true for her," the insider tells the magazine.

Ironically, Gosling and Mendes met on the set of The Place Beyond The Pines, in which they played parents. They've been dating off and on for over three years.

Neither has commented on the pregnancy, even though the blogosphere is starting to buzz with the news.

Is a Chanel maternity line happening?

Model Ashleigh Good concludes the Chanel Haute Couture in Paris arm-in-arm with Karl Lagerfeld in a maternity bridal gown. METRO

Here comes the couture. Karl debuts gown designed for the bride who's got a bun in the oven

Karl Lagerfeld is just full of surprises. As if sending Kendall Jenner down the runway wasn't enough to get people talking, the designer concluded his Fall 2014 Chanel Haute Couture show in Paris with a maternity dress.

To be fair, he only designed one maternity dress, and it is a maternity wedding gown. Not only that, he designed it for someone specific: model Ashleigh Good who modeled the dress, kissing Lagerfeld on the cheek at the end of the runway. The two are close friends and Ashleigh Good is currently seven months pregnant. The dress was well-received at the show. As you can see by the photo, Anna Wintour can hardly contain herself.

Good isn't the first person to wear a Chanel maternity bridal gown. Drew Barrymore wore a Chanel gown to her wedding when she married Will Kopel in 2012. But celebrity royalty is one thing. Wearing Chanel to your own shotgun wedding probably isn't going to happen anytime soon.

Design tips to make the upgrade

Customize your condo. Metro talks with three of Toronto's top condo design firms on what's hot this summer

CONDO TRENDS
Duncan McAllister
life@metronews.ca

Conventionally, condo developers offer a base package with a selection of standard colours, fixtures and finishes. But discerning buyers today want that one-of-a-kind look, something truly unique. And the focus is on quality — no cheap stuff here. "There's a real focus on the truth of the material and the cost and quality of the material," says Kevin Chan, principal at Nivek Remas, the design team behind Lanehouse and Dovercourt 455.

In most cases, the buyer can spring for upgrades either in pre-construction or after moving in, and as far as condo upgrades go, kitchens and bathrooms rule. Jessica Helps is a founding member and principal of Seven Haus Design who has been active with Streetcar Developments' roster of downtown condo-lofts.

"Our Streetcar purchasers can change the hardwood flooring, any tiled surface, they can change their kitchen cabinetry, colours, their countertops, their backsplash, as well as the height and sometimes the configuration and appliances of the kitchen," she explains. "We're working with some veneer suppliers from Europe, trying to get a very unique product as well as something that has a really rich look to it and again, keeping with really elegant colours."

Interior designed by Nivek Remas. NAOMI FINLAY

Condo owners are always looking to maximize every square inch of space. "One thing that's really important with buyers and investors is looking at the cabinetry," says Tania Richardson, principal partner with Tomas Pearce Interior Design Consulting Inc., whose interiors include such projects as Ocean Club, Jade and The Yorkville Condominiums. "They're really upgrading their kitchens in terms of making them look like a piece of furniture — it's not as utilitarian as it used to be."

As far as palettes go, purples are back, thanks to colour authority Pantone naming Radiant Orchid the colour of 2014. Do designers pay attention? Not really says Chan. The vote is unanimous: All three of our experts say neutral colors for your condo. "What's really hot is whites, like a very neutral shell. It could be whites, it could be greyish, grey-beige," says Chan.

"For those who want to add a little punch maybe they add an accent wall or a dark dining room or a powder room with wallpaper, something like that to kind of add a little bit of their own personality to the space," adds Richardson.

Designer-recommended upgrades

- Kitchen cabinet mods. Add self-closing drawers, glass fronts to show off your glassware, maybe some open shelves.
- Paneled appliances. They're very popular. Hide your dishwasher and fridge with panels that match your cabinetry.
- Gadgets. They're all the rage. Deck out your suite with wine fridges, under valance lighting and Nest programmable thermostats.
- Tile. Ceramic tile can be upgraded to a luxurious marble or even sustainable stone for the eco-minded.
- Pot lighting. Condos have four to six pot lights per suite. If you want more lights or outlets, the time to do it is before it's built. Once the concrete is poured, there's no going back.
- Extended height cabinets. They raise the ceiling height of your kitchen to give you more storage and make the space look larger.

Legal Matters

Tax holdback held by lawyer

I sold my home several months ago which I had basically stripped down to the bare bones and rebuilt. It resulted in the house being almost twice as large and obviously worth substantially more money. On closing, the purchaser's lawyer insisted that we hold back a large sum of money for re-assessment of taxes. It has been quite some time since the transaction and I have not heard anything from my lawyer. What should I do?

LEGAL MATTERS
Jeffrey Cowan
home@metronews.ca

As in most cases, I would suggest you call your lawyer to see what the status of the tax holdback is. Typically it takes quite a few months for the taxing authority (the Municipal Property Assessment Corporation) in conjunction with the municipality to re-assess the new value of a substantially remodelled home. You will be responsible for the increased taxes from the issuance of the occupancy permit up until the date you sold the property. If you haven't heard anything, in all likelihood your lawyer hasn't heard anything.

You can follow up with the law firm but until the city gets around to re-assessing the taxes, the money will stay in trust waiting for a new tax bill to come in.

The project overview

The Carnaby Collection includes two-storey loft condos and spacious penthouses with oversized windows and engineered hardwood flooring throughout. Kitchens feature ultra-contemporary finishes, stainless steel appliances and European cabinetry.

Location and transit

Queen West and Gladstone has quickly become one of Toronto's centres of cool culture. The building is located along the TTC Queen streetcar line, minutes from the downtown core. Drivers will have quick access to the Gardiner Expressway.

In the neighbourhood

The Carnaby is within walking distance of trendy hotels, lounges and bars, the hippest nightspots, emerging restaurants and avant-garde galleries, as well as Trinity Bellwoods Park. A Metro grocery store and gallery will be situated on the ground floor.

Building amenities

A fully-appointed fitness centre, an outdoor terrace with sun lounge contemporary party room, media lounge and bar, a courtyard with a pedestrian-friendly landscaped laneway, with shopping in the ground-level retail and studios are featured.

Code of Conduct

Reno industry still growing

BRYAN TUCKEY
President and CEO of the Building Industry and Land Development Association (BILD) can be found at twitter.com/bildgta, facebook.com/bildgta, and bildblogs.ca.

Renovating is a great way to boost the value of your home, not to mention the quality of life for you and your family. That's why for the past 15 years, more and more Canadians are investing their hard-earned money into home renovations.

According to a recent study conducted by Altus Group, renovation spending in Canada has been on the rise since 1998 and doesn't appear to be slowing down any time soon. The expected annual growth is estimated at approximately three per cent per year.

Today's residential renovation industry is worth $63.4 billion, which is approximately 3.7 per cent of the total GDP — a great example of the renovation sector's impact on the national economy.

Just in the GTA alone, the residential renovation industry is responsible for creating close to 100,000 new jobs every year, and is one of the largest employers in our region. These are well-paying, quality jobs that add up to about $5.4 billion in wages.

Those wages are then pumped right back into the local economy as purchases, whether it's food, clothes, cars or entertainment.

Of course not all renovators are the same. I always recommend the hiring of a professional contractor to work on your home. A good place to find one is at renomark.ca — home of the national RenoMark program started by BILD back in 2001.

Every member of the RenoMark program agrees to a renovation-specific Code of Conduct which binds it to a number of obligations like providing a minimum two-year warranty on all work, being covered by at least $2 million worth of liability insurance and carrying all applicable licenses and permits.

If your renovator offers you a chance to save on the taxes and do the work for a cash fee, I strongly urge you to walk away. Cash jobs come with no written contract, so there's no accountability should your renovator leave you with a subpar renovation or nothing at all.

Don't fall victim to the underground economy. Millions of Canadians nationwide are already working with professional, reputable contractors and getting the most out of their homes. You should too.

How to install a sliding storage unit on a garage ceiling

Clear away garage clutter with an easy-to-install overhead sliding storage unit. ISTOCK

DIY. Tidy a messy garage by building an overhead bunker for storage totes

Cleaning out a garage can be one of the most tedious household chores. But the simple solution to organizing the clutter might have gone right over your head. An easy-to-install, sliding storage unit packs equipment in a convenient overhead bunker, and can be constructed with basic building materials.

First, select a large, sturdy container, preferably a reinforced tote as the storage compartment.

Start by measuring the width of the tote's rim to determine how wide the rims of the sliding unit need to be.

Measure and cut two sheets of plywood that are twice the width of the tote rim, plus another two inches to make room for a vertical 2x4 base.

Centre the plywood pieces underneath two 2x4s, creating inside and outside edges that fit the tote rim.

What you'll need

Building the storage unit will require:

- 2x4s
- Plywood
- Saw
- Drill
- Socket and ratchet set
- Stud detector
- Level

Cut plywood strips for the top of the 2x4s that are 2 to 3 inches wider than the bottom ones for added support. Ensure both pieces are centered, and fasten the frames together with two inch screws, spacing them evenly.

Use a stud detector to carefully mark support joists in the garage ceiling.

Using a level, align the two pieces of the sliding frame on the ceiling.

Measure and space them apart, so that the rims of the tote fit into the unit perfectly.

Attach the shelf pieces to the ceiling with temporary screws, and check the placement of the frame by sliding the tote in.

The rims of the tote should fit in as securely as possible, while still being able to slide.

Drill four, evenly-spaced guiding holes through the frame pieces and into the joists, then use bolts to fasten it to the ceiling.

Remove the temporary screws, and apply stopping screws at the ends of the unit to keep the container from falling out the other side.

Be sure that the tote isn't too heavy (200 pounds is overcapacity), and that it can be reached from the garage floor.

A room of understated beauty

Low-key luxe. Balance a subtle palette of neutral colours with a mix of rich textures and unique shapes

Paint your walls a bold colour and friends will likely praise your creativity. Invest in a standout piece of furniture or striking work of art and your decorating is bound to earn compliments. But creating a noteworthy room with subtle, understated elegance is a bit more complicated.

Understated style "rides the fine line between too sparse and too cold," says designer Brian Patrick Flynn, creator of the FlynnsideOut design blog. "A lack of objects makes a room feel unfinished, and a lack of colour can also read of lifeless."

But finding the right, subtle balance can be worth it. Although bold decorating has been in the spotlight for a while, a more neutral room, if well-designed, "will never become tired," Flynn says.

"Every once in a while, it's nice to have a space that's just simple and clean," he says.

How do you design a room that's low-key and beautiful, not bland and boring?

Soften every surface

Without warm, vibrant colours, you can create warmth in understated rooms by filling them with soft, elegant materials that look and feel appealing.

"Think of a camel cashmere sweater," says designer Betsy Burnham of Burnham Design in Los Angeles. "It's the simplest thing in the world," but it's timelessly beautiful and feels great.

Materials like cashmere, silk and "breathable fabrics such as linen or cotton blends" bring a sense of warmth and comfort, Flynn agrees.

He also recommends wood surfaces softened by whitewashing, smooth stone surfaces, and "broadloom carpet that adds texture and softness underfoot."

Use natural and artificial lighting for a soft glow. Sheer curtains can maximize daylight, while "in the evening, it's about lamps," says New York-based designer Jon Call of Mr. Call Designs. Place lamps to evenly spread light throughout the space, eliminating bright spots and dark shadows.

Flynn also recommends dimmers to control light precisely.

Compelling shapes

In a subtle room without busy patterns or bold colours, find other ways to create interest, Call says. One strategy is using objects with interesting or intricate shapes that draw attention to workmanship and creativity.

Burnham recently designed a bedroom with a large bed that featured beautiful wood carving, bringing some excitement to an otherwise subtle room. Flynn seeks out furniture with "interesting detail, such as fretwork or inlaid paneling."

Contrast and layer

Monochrome doesn't mean only one shade; mix a variety of tans, beiges and creams into a neutral room.

"I usually add several shades and tints of the same neutral tone throughout the space to give it depth," Flynn says.

Also use a variety of contrasting textures. Silk will maximize light, Call says, while materials like linen and cashmere absorb it. So use them together: Pair a linen sofa with silk pillows, for example, or a seagrass rug with a silk-covered chair.

An understated living room created by Los Angeles interior designer Betsy Burnham. GREY CRAWFORD/BURNHAM DESIGN/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"Think of what materials and shapes are missing, and then keep adding until they fit together like a puzzle," says Flynn. "The key to a well-balanced room is a mix of natural materials."

Eliminate what's not special

In a subtle but striking room, "everything you do use should mean something," Burnham says. "Either it's an interesting shape, or the finish is unusual or the fabric is so fine and special."

There are fewer items, but better ones. Your coffee table may be a neutral colour and simple material, she says, but "maybe it's a vintage coffee table that has this amazing provenance or patina."

Eliminate items that don't contribute much. If letting go of them is difficult, Burnham suggests this exercise: "For everything you bring in, you take two things away."

Flynn agrees: "Editing plays a huge role in understated rooms," he says. "In a dining room I did in Atlanta, I used all dove grey tones in the room, and every single element had highly sculptural qualities that made the play on shapes and texture the prominent story."

Versatility is your BFF

IKEA has embraced this mobile-renter demographic with its P.S. collections. Now eight years running, the collections feature pieces that are portable and inexpensive but well-designed. The Havet sofas have wheels; a stool has an embedded LED lamp.

Peter Klinkert heads the retailer's Special Collections. He says this year's 50 pieces came out of collaborations between young international designers and the IKEA in-house team.

"Small space doesn't always mean no space," Klinkert says.

Buy furniture that's multifunctional, he advises: Storage cubes that also work as coffee tables, or a dining table that offers storage, so it can be used as a workspace. (ikea.ca)

Makeshift dining in tight quarters

Turn on a dine. Stylish options for a tiny condo

DESIGN CENTRE
Karl Lohnes
home@metronews.ca

A reader asks: I am moving into a tiny condo and need occasional dining space that will seat 2-3 people. What are my options?

I suggest creating a multi-purpose area instead of dedicating space to a dining room that will rarely be used.

This will allow your dining space to do double or triple duty as a home office, an attractive display console or a storage area.

With a desk or console sitting against the wall, you can forgo hanging a light fixture and free up the centre of the room by not having to float a table in the middle of the space.

Instead of focusing on the centre of a dedicated dining space with a chandelier and rug, concentrate on the vertical wall of the dining area. A large mirror hanging over a desk or console table topped with potted orchids, and a decorative storage bench underneath creates an attractive vista to look at on a daily basis.

Here are a few other ideas for maximizing a dining experience within your tiny condo:

Slim pickins

Consider purchasing a slim desk or console to be used for occasional dining with guests.

- When pulled out, it should be able to accommodate two to four people easily.

Chairs

Consider using small-scale occasional chairs from your living room area as go-to dining chairs when needed.

A vintage-style desk can double as a charming place for entertaining. Garment Factory Desk, $1300, RestorationHardware.com. RESTORATIONHARDWARE.COM

There are also a lot of stackable dining chairs that can be stored in a closet until needed.

Purchase a few attractive outdoor chairs (often stackable) and bring them in from a balcony when needed.

Antiques

Like the look of antiques? There are many older furniture styles such as partner's desks, tilt-top tables and drop-leaf tables that can add old world charm yet survive in a small space. Blending antique looks within a modern apartment can make them look quite special.

A library-inspired console can display books, plants and a laptop by day and seat dinner guests at night. Stanton Work Station, $600, bombay.ca. BOMBAY.CA

A saw-horse base in metal adds an industrial-chic look to a desk/dining table. Eiffel Desk, $800, urbanbarn.com. URBANBARN.COM

A tall side table offers up individual dining perches in the living room. VITTSJO stand table, $25, ikea.com. IKEA.COM

Alternative options

Tray-style and tall end tables are an easy way to offer each guest their dining space while sitting in the dining or living spaces of your condo.

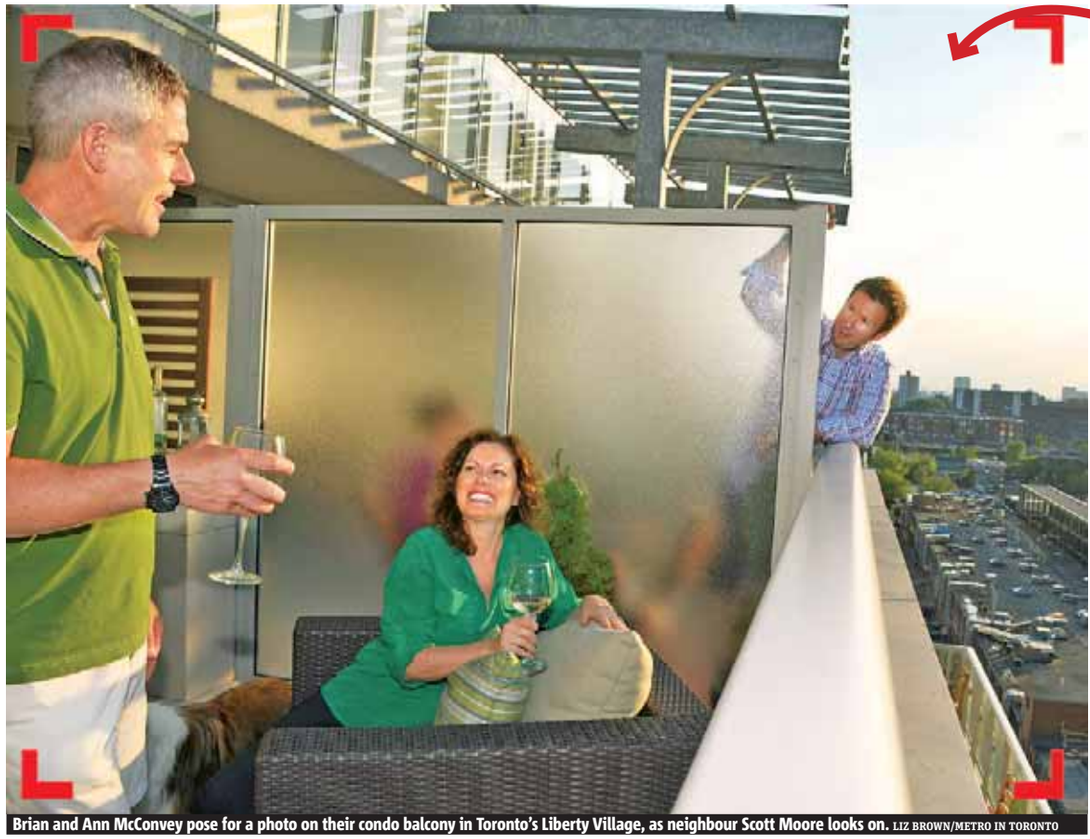
Tips to keep condo life classy

Mind your manners.
Basic balcony etiquette can help you keep the peace with neighbours

MELISSA DUNNE
toronto@metronews.ca



Brian and Ann McConvey pose for a photo on their condo balcony in Toronto's Liberty Village, as neighbour Scott Moore looks on. LIZ BROWN/METRO IN TORONTO

Like many Canadians, Scott Moore grew up in the suburbs.

Summers in suburbia tended to look like something out of a Canadian Tire flyer: The pesticide-green lawns were gigantic, the backyard fences tall and neighbours were close, but not too close.

Then, also like many Canadians, Moore grew up and fled the outskirts for the core.

A whopping one in eight households now live in a condo, according to Statistics Canada. There are concrete slabs and frosted glass. Neighbours are above, below, beside and across from each other — they are very, very close.

"I'm out here every day," says Moore of his balcony. He moved into his 14th-floor condo just in time for warm weather. "I barbecue and socialize out here. It feels like I'm not even in downtown Toronto."

There are reminders the 38-year-old lives in Canada's condo capital, though.

Ann McConvey, his next-door neighbour and fellow ex-suburbanite, poked her head around the glass balcony barrier before he even officially moved in and said hi.

After a brutal winter, McConvey, 44, her equally bubbly hubby, Brian, 51, and their sheltie, Fergus, 3, also soak up the sun on their Liberty Village balcony most days.

In a big city, relations between condo dwellers are not usually as warm as they are between the McConveys and Moore. Metro talked to an etiquette expert, who offered some tips to making sure it's only the humidity creating sticky situations on your balcony this summer.

Get to know thy neighbour

A hot day is the perfect time to break the ice, says Karen Cleveland, the Toronto-based author of mannersaresexy.com. So no need to act like there's no one on the other side of that balcony wall.

"Wave," advises the etiquette expert. "Introduce yourself."

Keeping up with the McConveys

Even if you don't know your neighbours' names, they've likely overheard you talking about your latest date, seen you sunning in your bikini and know if you're a clutterbug. You don't have to measure up to the McConveys and Moore, whose balconies look straight out of an Urban Barn catalogue — just keep it clean and tidy.

Sugar catches more flies than vinegar

Don't sweat dishing some dirt with your girls or hosting a dinner party outside. You can even play a few summer jams on your balcony so long as you keep the volume levels reasonable, says Cleveland.

"That's with a caveat," she notes. "Hopefully you and your neighbours have a similar taste in music, or it could go sideways fast."

If your neighbours are blasting Bryan Adams' Summer of '69 on repeat and you fear you may hurl their iPad off the balcony — knock on their door.

Cleveland advises asking noisy neighbours nicely, calmly and directly to keep it down.

Karen Cleveland
CONTRIBUTED

Take in the larger view (from the top)

People typically do not enjoy having things drop and drip down on them, so before watering your plants and flowers get some liners for a "few pennies each" to catch the run-off, says Cleveland.

But when it comes to addressing a neighbour's faux pas, Moore adds that sometimes you have to choose your battles, such as when a cigarette butt comes flying down off a distant balcony in the dark of night. Residents can choose to play Sherlock on a bright July day, mapping wind currents and matching lipstick shades to narrow down the suspects. But "you'll never really know" where the cigarette came from, Moore says.

With only 75 official days of summer left, the suburbanite turned urbanite would rather spend his time taking in his stunning view of Lake Ontario.

Nightmare neighbours

Cities and condos have bylaws to regulate balcony behaviour, but enforcing those rules costs time and money. While most neighbours can work through conflicts on their own, some high-rise disputes make it all the way to our highest courts.

- In Vancouver, a vegetable magnate installed a hot tub, big-screen TV, and two speakers on his condo's large deck and balcony in 2010. The complaints soon started rolling in from his Yaletown neighbours. The case eventually made it to the Supreme Court of British Columbia. The party animal fought for his right to party, and lost. In 2012, the judge put a stop to the hot tub parties from 11 p.m. to 8 a.m., in accordance with the building's rules.
- In Toronto, a different kind of animal led to a neighbour war. The owner of a Yorkshire terrier would let the dog "relieve itself from time to time" on her second-floor condo balcony. The urine frequently dripped down to the first floor below. The neighbour complained. The case wound its way up to the Ontario Superior Court in 2011. The judge ruled the dog had to be removed from the unit permanently and the owner was ordered to pay $1,384.25 in cleaning fees and $806.65 in legal costs.

On the street: What's your balcony pet peeve?

"Construction. I open the door for Max; the noise is bothersome."

"Garbage and all the stuff that's blowing around out there."

Go on, show off

You can't make friends with a shabby balcony, so here are a few ideas to help you make a good impression on your neighbours.

1 Among foodies the Big Green Egg is the Cadillac of charcoal cookers. While most buildings don't allow the ceramic grill/smoker, that hasn't stopped condo dwellers from buying the, ahem, discrete Mini and Small varieties for balconies, say the Big Green Egg people. Prices upon request. Go to biggreenegg.ca to locate a dealer.

2 Trying to impress the attractive neighbour across the way with your cocktail-making skills? This Sumatra Serving Trolley from Urban Barn should help paint the picture of a sophisticated (and ready-to-mingle) urbanite. $229. Go to urbanbarn.com to find a store near you.

3 No, you don't have a lawn to stick a pair of plastic pink flamingoes in. Don't dwell on your lack of a lawn, instead put the kitschy couple from Canadian Tire in one of your urban garden planters. $14.99. Go to canadiantire.ca to find a store close by.

Meet nature's coolest superfood

Coconut is rich in healthy fats, high in fibre and low in carbohydrates. It grabs the spotlight in Sasha Seymour's Coconut Every Day. The book shows readers how to incorporate the superfood into 100 of their favourite everyday recipes.

It features coconut in all its forms — water, milk, oil, gluten-free flour, sugar and more — in everything from Cauliflower Soup and Curried Chicken Salad to Shepherd's Pie, Coconut Cream Pie and more. METRO

Sticky Coconut-Glazed Chicken Wings. These tasty bites perfectly balance sweet and heat. Pair them with a side dishes for a meal

"Who doesn't love a slightly sticky, sweet and spicy chicken wing?" asks Sasha Seymour in her book Coconut Every Day: Cooking with Nature's Miracle Superfood.

"A few of these served with some plain brown rice and kimchi coleslaw make a great meal, and you can substitute drumsticks and thighs if you prefer them over chicken wings for dinner."

Ingredients

- 1 1/2 lb (675 g) chicken wings

For the marinade

1 1/2 cups (375 ml) unsweetened coconut water
1/4 cup (60 ml) soy sauce (gluten-free, if required)

For the glaze

1/4 cup (60 ml) tamari soy sauce (gluten-free, if required)
2 tbsp (30 ml) coconut sugar
1 tsp (5 ml) coconut vinegar
1/2 tsp (2 ml) cayenne pepper

1. Make the Marinade: In a large bowl, stir together coconut water and soy sauce. Add chicken wings, stirring to coat. Cover and refrigerate for at least 1 hour or up to 4 hours.

2. Make the Glaze: In a small bowl, combine tamari sauce, coconut sugar, coconut vinegar, and cayenne. Stir until well mixed.

3. Preheat oven to 400 F (200 C) (or preheat grill to medium-low and lightly oil grill).

4. Remove wings from marinade and roast on a parchment-lined baking sheet (or grill), flipping and basting wings with glaze about 4 times, until wings are cooked, 35 to 40 minutes. Let rest for about 10 minutes before serving. FROM COCONUT EVERY DAY: COOKING WITH NATURE'S MIRACLE SUPERFOOD. COPYRIGHT SASHA SEYMOUR, 2014. REPRINTED BY PERMISSION OF PENGUIN CANADA BOOKS INC.

'It was torturous'

Drubbing wasn't keeper's fault: TFC manager

Toronto FC manager Ryan Nelsen watched Brazil's humiliating World Cup loss with wonder and a little bit of horror.

"It was like watching a car crash or something," Nelsen said of the Brazil's shocking 7-1 loss to Germany in Tuesday's World Cup semifinal. "It was torturous."

Nelsen and Toronto FC have followed the Brazilians with special interest, given that Toronto goalie Julio Cesar is their No. 1. Cesar was basically abandoned by his defence in the semifinal.

"None of the fault should be put at Julio's feet," Nelsen said Wednesday. THE CANADIAN PRESS

'A lot of respect'

Head of IOC praises Brazil for enduring big loss

IOC president Thomas Bach says he has "a lot of respect" for Brazil and its fans after the team's humbling 7-1 loss to Germany in the World Cup semifinals.

Bach, who is German, watched the match at a Lausanne hotel, sitting next to Carlos Nuzman, the Brazilian who heads the organizing committee for the 2016 Olympics in Rio de Janeiro.

Bach jumped to his feet and raised both arms after Miroslav Klose scored to put Germany up 2-0 after 23 minutes, but was politely restrained after that as the Germans piled on goal after goal.

The World Cup's second semifinal was supposed to put the silky skills of Lionel Messi and Arjen Robben in the spotlight. Instead, a goalkeeper and two rock-solid defences stole the show.

Argentina goalie Sergio Romero saved two penalties Wednesday to send Argentina into the World Cup final with a 4-2 shootout win over the Netherlands after tough defending and a lack of creative spark from either team consigned the match to a 0-0 stalemate.

In a twist of fate, Romero credited Netherlands coach Louis van Gaal with helping launch his career when he arrived as an inexperienced youngster at AZ Alkmaar in the Dutch league.

"I will be forever grateful to the coach for helping me out in a country that is so different from ours," Romero said.

A day after Germany lit up the World Cup with its clinical 7-1 destruction of host Brazil, the Dutch and Argentines could not manage a goal between them in 120 minutes before the shootout.

Messi, widely regarded as one of the greatest players of all time, will have to play far better in Sunday's final at Rio de Janeiro's Maracana Stadium if he is to engineer a win over the powerful German team. The Barcelona star was muted throughout the match and extra time, rarely managing to shake off his markers.

At the Itaquerao Stadium, he was overshadowed by his goalkeeper and the man he replaced as Argentina captain, Javier Mascherano, who bossed the midfield for his team the way surprise starter Nigel de Jong did for the Dutch.

When Robben looked like deciding the match in stoppage time, Mascherano's perfectly timed sliding tackle blocked his shot at the near post.

Romero — thought to be a weak link for Argentina and not even a starter for his Monaco club most of last season — had almost nothing to do during the match, but blocked penalties by Ron Vlaar and Wesley Sneijder in the shootout. For Argentina, Messi, Ezequiel Garay, Sergio Aguero and Maxi Rodriguez all converted their spot kicks.

Angels' power brings Blue Jays back down to Earth

MLB. Pujols hits two-run homer in the seventh to lead Los Angeles to victory

Albert Pujols hit a go-ahead, two-run homer in the seventh inning and Kole Calhoun also connected, leading the Los Angeles Angels to an 8-7 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays on Wednesday in the rubber match of the three-game series.

The Blue Jays took a 7-6 lead in the sixth on Dioner Navarro's two-out RBI single against Fernando Salas, making his second appearance off the disabled list after missing 19 games because of inflammation in his shoulder.

But Pujols responded with a drive that hit the top of the centre-field fence beyond the outstretched glove of Colby Rasmus and bounced over for his 20th homer of the season and 512th of his career, tying Ernie Banks and Eddie Mathews for 21st place all-time.

It scored Mike Trout, who reached on a fielder's choice grounder after Calhoun drew a leadoff walk from Aaron Loup (2-2).

Jason Grilli (1-1) pitched a scoreless inning for his first AL victory since 2009 with the Texas Rangers, striking out cleanup hitter Jose Bautista with two men on to end the seventh. The 12-year veteran right-hander was acquired on June 27 in a trade that sent Ernesto Frieri to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Spurs bring back Pop without much circumstance

While the rest of the NBA world waits in limbo for LeBron James and Carmelo Anthony to decide where they are going to play next season, the San Antonio Spurs just keep quietly making sure the band is getting back together for a another title run.

In the middle of the James hysteria on Wednesday, the Spurs issued a two-sentence press release announcing that coach Gregg Popovich had agreed to a multi-year contract extension. Terms of the deal were not disclosed.

After beating the Miami Heat for the title last month, the Spurs quickly found out that Tim Duncan would indeed return next season. Deals with Patty Mills and Boris Diaw ensured the roster would remain largely intact, leaving little doubt the 65-year-old Popovich would return for a 19th season on the Spurs bench. Brittany Maclean is a big deal, but you won't hear it from her

Pan Am medal hopeful. Holder of two Canadian records and three NCAA records won't even eat cake on her own birthday

Brittany Maclean swims at the women's 400-metre freestyle in the 2012 London Olympics. GETTY IMAGES FILE

Brittany MacLean holds two Canadian records and three NCAA records, which she set swimming for her University of Georgia team this spring.

In one of them, the rough equivalent of 1,500 metres, she smashed the old record by 10 seconds, an absolute lifetime in elite sport, and her swim was the third fastest time ever for the distance.

It's all very impressive.

But what this 20-year-old from Toronto doesn't even bother mentioning is the one thing that will stand out most for everyone who is not intimately involved in the swimming world.

In one of her record-setting races, she beat Missy Franklin, the American phenom who racked up five Olympic medals, including four gold ones, at the London Summer Games.

No wonder the Canadian was named NCAA swimmer of the year. Yet another accomplishment she didn't volunteer.

Canuck

"She's Canadian through and through."

Dan Maclean speaking of his daughter's low profile about acknowledging her own accomplishments.

"She's not likely to be in charge of her own PR," her father, Dan MacLean, said chuckling.

"She's never going to be accused of being Reggie Jackson or someone who blows their own horn. She's Canadian through and through."

Others are happy to do it for her, with SwimNews calling her "sophomore stud Brittany MacLean, the girl who beat Missy head to head … in the 500 free."

After years of not quite making the jump to the national senior team, she nabbed a spot on the 4x200-metre relay team heading for Shanghai, China. Then, three weeks later, she cleaned house in Lima, Peru, at the world juniors with four medals, including two golds in her individual events.

Now there are the shrieks of "You beat Missy Franklin!" from people who find out about her NCAA record-setting race where she came from behind to beat Franklin to the wall.

"I don't necessarily look at it like that," she said, painstakingly explaining that the freestyle distance of just over 400 metres isn't one Franklin normally races.

"But I do think it's an accomplishment. She's one of the best swimmers that's ever been on the pool deck," she said. "Beating Missy is something that doesn't happen very often." TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

No-brainer. Blackhawks lock up Kane and Toews

This was a no-brainer from start to finish. Jonathan Toews and Patrick Kane wanted to stay in Chicago and the Blackhawks wanted to keep the high-scoring forwards in the only NHL uniform they have ever known.

All that was left was crunching the numbers on two of the biggest contracts in franchise history.

The Blackhawks announced Wednesday they had reached eight-year extensions with two of their top performers in a long run of success that includes Stanley Cup titles in 2010 and 2013. Toews and Kane led Chicago back to the Western Conference final this year, where it lost to the eventual champion Los Angeles Kings.

General manager Stan Bowman said all along that the extensions were his biggest off-season priority, and it didn't take very long to reach the agreements with Pat Brisson, who represents both players.

Toews and Kane each have one year left on their five-year extensions from December 2009, and July 1 was the first day they could sign new deals.

"There's nothing we want more as players than to continue to win Stanley Cups for the best hockey fans on the planet," Toews said in a statement released by the team.

Horoscopes by Sally Brompton

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
Steer clear of others' feuds today because if you get involved, you will regret it over the weekend. There are rights and wrongs on both sides.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
You like things to be in their proper place but some people enjoy making a mess to annoy you. You know who they are. Stay out of their way today.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
Try not to come across as too assertive or aggressive. A lot over the next few days will depend on your ability to meet others halfway, especially in areas where money at stake.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
Some things happen whether we like it or not and the approaching full moon is sure to highlight that. Things could, of course, be worse, so smile.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
You love your freedom but you have responsibilities like everyone else and over the next few days you will have to do your duty. Social activities will have to take second place.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
There are times when you wonder if certain people are really on your side and it may tempt you to go it alone. But that is not a good idea. You are going to need allies.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Someone in a position of power likes you but if you take that as a sign that you can do as you please, you're sadly mistaken.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
There is no point making a fuss today, not even if you can prove you have been hard done by. Sometimes we have to take what we're given and make the best of it. It's one of those times.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
This should be a lucky day but a lot will depend on common sense, especially where money is concerned. Put your interests first but be aware that your interests and others' are similar.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Although the approaching full moon is making you anxious everything will turn out right in the end. The so-called "bad" things that happen are challenges that help you grow.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Don't argue with people who clearly do not know what they are talking about. Over the next 24 hours, focus on your work, your family and your ambitions.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
With the Sun and Jupiter moving through the most dynamic area of your chart there is precious little you can't do, but you'll do it better as part of a team.
